

Export of Used Machinery and Spare Parts to India

CHARTERED ENGINEER CERTIFICATE (CEC) – EXPORT WITH CONFIDENCE WITH SGS

When exporting used machinery, equipment, spare parts, and technical equipment to India, Indian authorities often require a Chartered Engineer Certificate (CEC). Without the necessary assessment and documentation, you may face delays in customs clearance, additional inspections, or even rejection of the shipment.

SGS supports you with independent inspections - quickly, reliably, and competently.

SGS

OUR SERVICES

Our experts inspect your machinery and equipment in accordance with the requirements of the Indian authorities:

- Technical assessment of the equipment's condition
- Verification of manufacturer, model, year of manufacture, and original purchase value
- Classification as capital goods, spare parts, accessories, components, or scrap
- Testing for the absence of radioactive or hazardous contamination
- Preparation of the necessary documentation for customs clearance in India

Residual value assessments are carried out by SGS-approved Chartered Engineer Offices (CEC) in India, ensuring full compliance with local customs requirements. This enables the machinery to be successfully cleared through customs in the destination country, facilitating a smooth and efficient import process.
